OPENING WORD

WELCOME LOC CHAIR

The 28th IUGG General Assembly will be held 11–20 July 2023 at the CityCube Berlin in Berlin, Germany.

This General Assembly is a special opportunity for participants from around the world to come together and discuss the full range of geodetic and geophysical themes and further enhance the important interdisciplinary collaboration for a better understanding of our system Earth. IUGG2023 will provide a platform for personal meetings, exchange of ideas and developing new concepts for international science collaboration that suffered a lot during the period of the international pandemic crisis. It will help to create a new spirit to address pressing large societal challenges like the global environmental change and natural hazards and to stimulate novel geoscience research.

The Berlin-Brandenburg region is one of the largest geoscientific clusters worldwide. Participants will have a unique opportunity to meet their scientific partners from many projects in person here in Berlin or to combine this with a visit to the GFZ, AWI or DLR. We are planning an exciting excursion program and an attractive program with young scientists to give them opportunities for exchange, presentation and discussion beyond the sessions.

After the fall of the Berlin wall in 1989, the city of Berlin changed significantly, transforming into the dynamic, creative and highly innovative cosmopolitan capital of today's Germany. You will understand why Berlin is top ranked as one of the most livable cities, with its plenty sights, attractions and UNESCO World Heritage Sites, its extensive, fast and secure public transportation system or its lush natural environment. Summer in Berlin offers the best conditions to enjoy the city after an exciting conference day with July temperatures averaging around 20-24°C (around 68-75°F). The local organizers of IUGG2023 consider, irrespective of the further development of the COVID19 pandemic situation, organizing a hybrid assembly taking place both in Berlin and online so that the advantages of the current development of digital conferencing can be shared by many more colleagues in the scientific community.

On behalf of the Local Organizing Committee of IUGG2023, I welcome you to Berlin.

Harald Schuh

Chair of the Local Organising Committee
IUGG2023

WELCOME OF NKGK AND SPC CHAIR

On behalf of the German National Committee of Geodesy and Geophysics (NKGK), and as Chair of the Science Program Committee (SPC), I welcome you to the 28th IUGG General Assembly in Berlin. The General Assembly will give us the opportunity to present Germany and the Berlin-Brandenburg region as a showcase for an innovative research community.

Geosciences explore the complex system Earth in an interdisciplinary and international cooperation. Since its formation in 1919, IUGG has aimed to foster the international collaboration of various geoscience disciplines, which had their own organizations before. From the time when Germany joined the IUGG in 1951, the country has actively worked on the realization of joint international activities. Today, Germany is an excellent location for science which offers an outstanding research infrastructure and plenty of opportunities for scientists at all levels from all around the world. All eight associations of IUGG have a strong anchor in German research institutes. Of the multitude of institutions, I would just like to name a few here: the Helmholtz Centre Potsdam – GFZ German Research Centre for Geosciences, the Helmholtz Centre for polar and marine research – Alfred Wegener institute (AWI), the GEOMAR Helmholtz Centre for Ocean Research Kiel, the German Aerospace Center (DLR), a large number of German universities, and, last but not least, some federal agencies like the Federal Institute for Geosciences and Resources (BGR).

We will give one example for the fruitful cooperation of the various geoscience disciplines. German geodesy has taken a leading role in developing and realizing gravimetry satellite missions like GOCE, GRACE and GRACE-FO. Their data have remarkably contributed to globally determine the Earth's gravity field with unprecedented accuracy and resolution. In collaboration with all other geosciences, such as hydrology, oceanography, cryospheric sciences and geophysics, mass variations and interactions in the Earth system could be studied and better understood, just mentioning ice melting in Greenland and Antarctica, regional sea level variations and ground water loss due to climate change.

On behalf of the NKGK and as Chair of the SPC, I firmly believe that the IUGG General Assembly 2023 in Berlin will further enhance the important interdisciplinary collaboration for a better understanding of our System Earth. It will help to create a new spirit to address pressing societal challenges like the global environmental change and natural hazards and to stimulate novel geoscience research. In addition, Berlin is especially attractive for early career geoscientists.

Looking forward to meeting you in Berlin 2023.

Yours sincerely

Jürgen Müller

Chair of the Scientific Program Committee

ABOUT IUGG

- International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics (IUGG) is a non-governmental, scientific organization, established in 1919.
- IUGG is one of the 40 scientific Unions and Associations presently grouped within the International Science Council (ISC).
- IUGG is dedicated to the international promotion and coordination of scientific studies of Earth (physical, chemical, and mathematical) and its environment in space. These studies include the shape of the Earth, its gravitational and magnetic fields, the dynamics of the Earth as a whole and of its component parts, the Earth's internal structure, composition and tectonics, earthquakes and elastic wave propagation, the generation of magmas, volcanism and rock formation, the hydrological cycle including snow and ice, all aspects of the oceans, the atmosphere, ionosphere, magnetosphere and solar-terrestrial relations, and analogous problems associated with the Moon and other planets. IUGG encourages the application of this knowledge to societal needs, such as mineral resources, mitigation of natural hazards and environmental preservation.
- IUGG is comprised of eight semi-autonomous Associations, each responsible for a specific range of topics or themes within the overall scope of Union activities. In addition, IUGG establishes inter-Association Commissions, and relationships with several other scientific bodies with similar interests.
- IUGG holds General Assemblies at four-year intervals, and each of its Associations organize Scientific Assemblies as well as topical symposia in the intervening period between General Assemblies. IUGG is committed to the principle of free exchange of data and knowledge among nations, and encourages unreserved scientific participation by all peoples.

MISSION

- The International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics (IUGG) is the international organization dedicated to advancing, promoting, and communicating knowledge of the Earth system, its space environment, and the dynamical processes causing change.
- Through its constituent Associations, Commissions, and services, IUGG convenes international assemblies and workshops, undertakes research, assembles observations, gains insights, coordinates activities, liaises with other scientific bodies, plays an advocacy role, contributes to education, and works to expand capabilities and participation worldwide.
